

Decaying Sunflowers

Date

1965

Primary Maker

Brian Bourke

Medium

Oil on canvas

Dimensions

127 x 116.8 cm

Description

A still life painting of a bunch of dying sunflowers, sagging in a grey square vase sitting on the corner of a table.

Behind the flowers is a wall, presumably papered. The paper's pattern is made up of pink horizontal dashes on a dark pink background. The execution of the painting is reminiscent of Van Gogh's work.